Safecall User Group Meeting

Thursday 5th November | London

- | | |
|----------------|--|
| 8.30am | Arrival & networking |
| 9.00am | Welcome to the first Safecall User Group Meeting |
| 9.10am | The speak-up landscape: where are we now From rising tribunal claims to shifting reporting behaviours, the world of speak up is changing fast. Too many concerns still go unreported, and the pressure on organisations to get this right has never been greater. We take stock of the trends shaping the agenda in 2026 and what they mean for organisations like yours. |
| 9.30am | Culture on the agenda: what the regulatory landscape is telling us The Employment Rights Act is just one part of a bigger picture. Across regulation and legislation, the message is clear: organisations are increasingly being held accountable for their culture. We set out what is changing, why it matters and what leaders need to be thinking about now. |
| 9.55am | Beyond the policy: what governing culture really looks like From a global telecommunications business to one of the UK's most complex public sector organisations, our panellists bring very different contexts to the same fundamental question: who is responsible for culture, how do you govern it – and what does good really look like? |
| 10.30am | Comfort break |

10.40am	AI in the workplace: opportunity, risk & the human question AI is reshaping how concerns are raised, reported and investigated – and the pace of change is only accelerating. But how far should organisations go, and where does human judgement remain non-negotiable? We put a bold proposition to the room and invite you to challenge it, defend it and share where your organisation really stands.
11.05am	When someone speaks up: what happens next? Speaking up is only the beginning. What happens after a concern is raised – how it is triaged, investigated and resolved – is where organisations are increasingly judged. We explore what good looks like in practice and where the gaps most commonly appear.
11.25am	The road ahead: innovation, culture governance and what we are building for you Closing the morning with a look at what is next. We introduce our culture governance suite, share the latest developments from our product roadmap and give you an early glimpse of what we have in the pipeline – built around the challenges that matter most to you.
11.45am	Open Q&A
12.05pm	Closing remarks
12.15pm	Networking lunch

Safecall Futures Group (invite only)

At Safecall, we are committed to developing solutions that genuinely work for the people who use them. That is why we are launching our new Safecall Futures Group – a client-focused group that will help shape the future of our product. The first session takes place immediately following the User Group Meeting and is by invitation only.
